Old Cape Dutch Furniture

7020

Old Cape Dutch Lever Lock Furniture

The term Old Cape Dutch originates from South Africa and relates to an architectural style from the Cape Colony when the initial settlers were primarily Dutch.

These buildings incorporated the typical Dutch gable end from the early eighteenth century and were not superseded until the middle of the nineteenth century.

Although there are slightly different styles of door furniture all called Old Cape Dutch, it was this particular pattern that was manufactured in Britain and exported to South Africa during the twentieth century.
